Background:

The North Redmond neighborhood was and will remain one of the most unique areas within the City of Redmond. In an area that was previously predominantly semi-rural, the City is experiencing a great deal of development and change. Understanding that with change there may be concerns or questions; the Neighborhoods Planning Team is seeking residents of the neighborhood to maintain a communication link with the City. Following adoption of the updated North Redmond neighborhood plan, residents will be asked to join a Neighborhood Citizen Committee in order to help advance implementation of the plan's policies and regulations as well as priority projects and future considerations.

A great deal of work was accomplished by the North Redmond Citizen Advisory Committee who dedicated well over 15 months to assist with and guide the development of the updated plan. They considered many aspects of the neighborhood that may change as well as important features to retain over the next twenty years. With these considerations came identification of projects and future considerations that will prove essential to the sustainability and vitality of the North Redmond neighborhood for the long-term. The Neighborhood Citizen Committee will now take that work and the plan into the future.
